

The book integrates Islamic criminal law with the criminal law of Uganda. It discusses the law and moral values as factors that assist in regulating societal behaviour. The book is developed as a teaching manual to provide students and other readers with resources on the two legal disciplines. The aim is to enable the reader to appreciate the principles of law under Islamic criminal law and the criminal law of Uganda. This is not intended to check on the superiority of the two legal systems but this being a comparative study it will enable identification of the best practices of each legal system which might be adopted to enhance protection of the people and their properties.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Dr. Kasozi Ediriisa Sinaani is a Lecturer of Law at the Islamic University in Uganda where he has taught Islamic Law courses since 2008 both at the undergraduate and postgraduate levels. He served as the Deputy Dean between 2014 – 2017 (Mbale Campus) and 2017 – 2020 (Kampala Campus). He is currently the Deputy Director for Kampala Campus at the Islamic University in Uganda. He is a graduate of Law from the International University of Africa, Sudan where he obtained a Bachelor of Laws degree (comparative perspective with Islamic Law). He also studied from Omdurman Islamic University where he obtained a Master of Laws degree and PhD degree in Sharia and Law. He has expertise in Islamic Law where he has published some academic articles as well as engaged in curriculum development of related courses. He engages in Da'wah activities and is a member of NADIWA – Uganda.

Dr. Saidat Nakitto is a Senior Lecturer and the Deputy Dean of the Faculty of Law at Gulu University. She also teaches at the Islamic University in Uganda where she previously served as the Dean in the Faculty of Law. She has examined students for the Master of Laws (LLM) degree programme in Uganda and in other African states such as South Africa. She has passion for the academia and has published scholarly articles on several matters but with special interest in Criminal Law, Human Rights Law, International Law and International Criminal Law. She holds a Bachelor of Laws degree from Makerere University, a Master of Laws degree in Human Rights Law from the University of Nottingham (UK) and a PhD degree from Brunel University (UK). Aside teaching, she practices Law as an advocate of the High Court of Uganda.

Mr. Muyunga Ashiraf worked as a Teaching Assistant in the Faculty of Law at the Islamic University in Uganda 2018 – 2021. He currently works as Magistrate Grade I and he is also a researcher in the areas of secular and Islamic Law as well as an advocate of the High Court of Uganda. He is a graduate of law from the Islamic University in Uganda where he studied for his Bachelor of Laws degree and Master of Laws degree.

ISBN 978-9913-676-00-7

9 789913 676007